In a few weeks the French Consuls who tity at the same price. have been appointed to Lungehow and Mongteze will have arrived at their posts, and the provisions of the commercial treaty between France and China governing the land trade between Tonguin and China will come into force. The Hanoi and Haiphong papers

The Avenir du Tonkin speaks disparagingly of Lungchow, but looks for a great expansion of trade by the Red River route to Yunnan. M. Rochen, who has been appointed Consul at Mongteze, left for Lackay on the 28th March, and was expected to reach his river by M. Mainfrey, who was shooting in the destination in twenty-five days. The Avenir congratulates the Department on the judicious selection it has made in M. Roomen, on account of his intimate acquaintance with Michelez has photographed it, with a young of presenting a forged cheque to the Bank. the province of Yunnan and his relations with the Court of the Viceroy. The people of Yunnan, the article goes on to say, are as desirous as the French and Tonquinese to see the Bed River route re-opened to the free transit of the products of their rich province, and M. ROCHER will no doubt very soon arrange a modus vivendi advantageous to the interests of both countries. "But what we fear," says the writer in conclusion, "is that all the advantages of the re-opening of the route will be nullified by the operation of our Customs laws, the plague required by residents and those of Tonquin, which are at once vexatious > at least hope that the Government will appreciate the necessity of allowing absolute to proceed to church they refused to march freedom for the transit trade." From this it would seem that some doubt is felt on the point; but it is hardly conceivable that any Government would be so foolish as to place Customs impediments in the way of a tranait trade. To do so in this case would be obviously suicidal, for there are other routes by which South-western China can be an provisions. Roads are being cut to open proached, and the Red River route can have no chance in competition with the others if in steamers, had touched recoutly at Ascencion Robert Graham, P.C. 24, said that about 1.30, you is incredible. interchange of commodities between Tonquin and Yunnan will necessarily be comparatively preparing to embark in the trade with such facilities as the river may afford, and a good many consigments for Yunnan have been arriving. Amongst the articles mentioned on the manifests our contemporary has noted the following :- Joss-sticke, salt vegetables, paper, onions, areca nats, cotton yarn No. 20, dried fisb, matches, medicines, seaweed, curios, toys, whetstones, scissors, woollen and being uncovered, Mr. W. What strikes one in reading over this list is the number of articles of petit. merce, which would be lumped together under the head of "sundries" in the returns of the Chinese Foreign Customs. The total value of goods received at Haiphong for Yunnan from the 1st January to 23rd March amounted only to $27,564. There has of course always been some trade on the Red River, but if it has ever fallen much below these figures it must have been smaller even than was supposed. During the last few years the French had, apparently, become reconciled to the idea that the Red River was impracticable as a great trade route. and that the only hope of building up an extensive commerce with South-western China wick, R. Fraser, D. McCalloch, and J. Stephon. lay in the construction of a railway. The establishment of Consulates at the frontier trading stations seems to some extent Messrs. John Haddon & Co., to have revived the expectations that were formerly, entertained. The Courrier hopes that the Red River route willMr. W. M. THE NEW BUDDHIST RELICS.

Mr. J. M. Campbell, of the Bombay Civil lervice, whose discovery of the Buddhist relics at Sopara nearly ten years ago made a sensation in the antiquarian world, has again been singularly fortunate. In another Buddhist mound, some six miles southeast of the city of Junagadh in Kattywar, he has unearthed another series of caskets, containing it seems certain more veritable relies of the "divine pessimist, Gautama Buddha," who flourished more than six hundred years before Christ, and whose followers are still more numerous than those of either of the other two great religious creeds. The new mound, or the "Girnar Mound", as it will be known among antiquarians, is nearly three times as large as the Sopara Mound, being between 80 and 90 feet high instead of 27, and about 230 yards round instead of 65. But the same time, namely, about 150 B. C., or some

The Eiffel Tower is to be the rage of the Exhibition year. In Paris its tapering hideousness confronts you everywhere, even when you are not looking towards the Champ de Mars. Clocks and watches are made in its semblance: at the confectioners' you buy Eiffel owers in sweetmeat; probably top hats and toothpicks in the same classic shape will presently be on sale in the Rue de Rivoli. So many millions of reproductions of the Tower are being made that M. Eiffel began to think he ought to get some thing out of them in the shape of royalty. Therefore he sold the right of reproduction to M. Jaluzot of the Printemps, who is going to prosecute the enterprising tradesmen who infringe his copyright. We have nearly had enough of the Eiffel Tower already; and by the time the Exhibition is over and all the actions have been tried, we shall all be weary unto death his best to speil the coup acil of Paris, and has tor .- "Friends of mine in Dumfriesshire had in their house two Dandie Dinmont dogs who were inseparable friends and constant companions in all that was going on. One day one of these dogs disappeared unaccountably, and nothing was seen of it for a week. His owners were very vexed, thinking he must have got within the range of some keeper's gun, or met with some other accident. But the absentee's home-keeping companion was greatly distressed; he moped about and would not touch food for several days, till, unexpectedly, the truant suddenly reappeared and showed himself in the house. The dog who had remained at home, when he saw the arrival of his former friend, looked stendily at him for a few seconds, and then without further parley, went at him and gave the trunk a thoroughly sound thrashing. I always explain this to myself by supposing that the home-keeping dog decided that the truant had caused him for several days needless anxiety and abstinence from food, and that the truent must learn by painful experience that such behaviour could not belightly condoned by his inseparable companion."

POST-OFFICE NOTICES.

When Correspondence has been mis-sent or delayed (both of which are liable to happen occasionally) all that the addressee need do is to note on the cover, Sent to ----- , or Received at 7 p.m., or as the case may be, and forward it. without any other writing whatever, to the Postmaster-General. This should be acted on the first time cause of complaint occurs; it is a mistake to let such matters pass for fear of giving trouble, a course which generally gives more trouble in the end.

The Postal Guide for 1888, ravised to date, will be found in the Daily Press Directory, p. 389 large edition, p. 733 small edition. This is the only authorised complete Summary of Postal information published in Hongkong.
